6:54: MISSION TIME CHECK: In Peru, translating a New Testament can take as little as 3 years, or more than 20 years, depending on factors like whether a written alphabet and a language that already exists. Most Wycliffe translators commit to living within the communities where they are translating, often in remote parts of the world, to do the following:

- Create an alphabet and written language from scratch (in oral-only cultures)
- Translate Scripture, along with health care information, school books and other materials helpful to a community
- Teach residents to read, often for the first time. Pray for Moody Radio and Wycliffe Bible Translators’ Last Languages Campaign, tomorrow and Thursday on WCRF. In Lima, Peru...and in Cleveland, Ohio, the time is 6:55am...time for Moody Radio News with Gary Bittner...
